Reason for taking this course. (32 Responses)	2	0	2	28	0	0	0
The instructor's greatest strengths are:

- She is knowledgeable and has a passion for the material being taught.
- Everything
- Being kind and thoughtful but thorough and helpful
- understanding
- Her knowledge of the subject and willingness to help her students.
- Having everyone engage with the professor and others with different in-class activities that are fun and easy to learn from.
- communicating
- communication, organization, patience, willing to help
- Making class fun! Professor Stover made class enjoyable and made all of us participate in fun class experiments that helped us learn the material.
- she is considerate and will explain until the student understands.
- Catering to the needs of students
- she is good at creating activities for us to do in class, making it very engaging.
- Professor Stover's greatest strengths are being able to relate with her students during these difficult times, as well as being kind and considerate to her students individual schedules. More oft always more than willing to accommodate with students needs and give much needed feedback in regards to our assignments. Professor Stover also presented a great amount of patience, alt opportunities for us to improve upon our grades while allowing us to learn from our previous mistakes.
- Very nice professor, very easy going
- Very engaging and easy to talk to. Her classes fly by.
- Her genuine interest in the subject as a whole was super engaging and fun.
- communication
- Communication, helpful, provide useful information, reach out to students about what the need to get done, very polite, Excellent explanations.
- The professor teaches well and she knows about the topics also.
- They are good at teaching and making sure that everyone is engaged. Class is very enjoyable and informative.
- She has no weaknesses
- Professor Stover is a well educated woman who cares about her students. The professor went out her way to go over any information that was unclear to the class and made extreme efforts t the information needed.
- very accurate and on point with her students

The instructor could improve this course by:

- -making the online environment quite easy to navigate by coordinating everything a bit better -reducing the amount of workload because it gets overwhelming especially when we have other to balance as well

- The only issue I had was with blackboard not the professor.
- nothing
- Showing more images
- professor gives a lot of weekly work
- Doing away with the blog type homework or trimming down the point based systems they use, it can be a lot of work on top of other classes.
- Not giving too many blogs because sometimes I feel overwhelmed with having to reach the 80 points.
- nothing
- maybe giving less blogs and elaborating on them a little further because at times they were very difficult and confusing. also, the grading could be done better.
- giving helpful assignments instead of a bunch of blogs that are hard to access
- Clearer instruction on what is expected
- This professor gives us about an 80-90 page powerpoint every week to review, which is just too much information to try to contain in an hour worth of class time. it is hard to retain the inform professor barely knows what she is talking about.
- No work to improve upon.
- Decreasing workload
- Be careful with the group projects. A lot of the students wait until last second to do their work or dont do it at all and its not fair to the students that actually need this course for their major. / shouldn't have to worry about their GPA taking a hit due to group projects and it potentially affecting the individuals financial aid or future in the field.
- The quizzes being due at 10am on Monday kinda threw me off since it followed up from the weekend. Maybe if there we due by the end of Monday class would be nice.
- Nothing, she provides everything needed
- The setup of the blogs and the weekly schedule were very annoying to use. I feel like if it was separated by week number like WEEK 1, WEEK 2 and etc. it would be much easier to navigate. I work needed to be looked at more as well as criticism regarding the work completed. I feel like I was just thrown into the group assignments.
- She doesn't need to improve
- Professor Stover did state that she had a degree in linguistics, At points in the course it did feel like her linguist knowledge did over ride the psychology aspect. This did make it difficult through understand what was being taught. There were also times where the professor was unsure of some psychological topics that she discussed which did leave the class feeling uneasy.
- giving moderate assignments

Please provide any additional comments on your experience in this course:

- Thank you for an informative and fun semester.
- Overall this course was super interesting and I loved how you would make the class engage in activities and those helped me better understand cognitive psychology. The blogs are sometimes because there are so many to do and as I previously mentioned I get overwhelmed. There are some blogs where I don't feel like doing but I don't have a choice, I have to do them.
- Overall , I think a psych teacher should be teaching this class, not a linguistic professor.
- One of the best Professors I've had the privilege to have in the Psychology Department. Have a wonderful holiday and a Happy New Year Professor!
- Wonderful Professor, wish I could take her class again.
- THIS LADY IS A GEM 11/10 would take her again. She's so nice and funny and makes class enjoyable and gives you lots of options to get points and credit and answers all your questions with in the question AND in helping you learn its delightful, made me love going to class on Mondays even if it were optional. It's really rare that you find engaging professors that can still teach at but here she is!
- love this class
- Taking this class was amazing. I had all the information I needed for my blogs and quizzes, and the instructor was fun. It was a memorable experience.
- I enjoyed taking this course.
- She is so kind. She helped me alot when I was going through a tough time. And gave me a lot of extensions and told me to take my time.
- Overall the class was good. I would take it again.
